

Classic Kersley has room to entertain

By Associated Designs

The Kersley's arched windows and lofty entry are reminiscent of Chateausque homes, popular at the turn of the 20th century. Keystone, corner quoins and a steeply pitched hip roof, not to mention sheer size, create an impression of statuesque grandeur.

Inside, a graceful curved staircase sweeps up the right side of a wide, bright foyer that boasts a two-story ceiling and a hardwood floor. Arched openings lead to the formal living room, dining room, and the informal family living spaces at the rear. Most of the main floor has 9-foot ceilings.

Above the fireplace in the living room, mirrored glass shelves showcase family mementos and objets d'art. French doors and a tray ceiling augment the sense of cultured refinement. The dining room, with its coffered ceiling, hardwood floor and built-in buffet, is equally elegant.

Family room, nook and kitchen are all of a piece. A pool room is off to the left, through raised panel doors. Roomy and bright, this play area has a wet bar and sliding glass doors that open on a large patio.

In the family room, another fireplace adds color and warmth. The entertainment center houses electronic toys -- big screen television, CD player, Blu-ray player, video games and what-have-you. Kitchen conveniences include a spacious walk-in pantry and a large work island with a cook top.

All four bedrooms in the Kersley are upstairs. Owners' suite luxuries include a capacious walk-in closet, and a bathroom with twin vanities, soaking tub, and oversized shower. The guest suite has its own bathroom, complete with shower. The other two bedrooms share a dual-entry, two-section bathroom.
